

As we are all dealing with the worldwide pandemic of COVID-19, the majority of us are enduring a period of self-isolation. While social distancing during this time is immensely important, that doesn't mean we can't stay connected virtually and learn more about what is going on in each others' lives! Below you will find a series of questions that will help you share your personal experiences and stories during this unique time. This collection will be made available to the public in the near future and will be retained for historical research. By responding you are giving the Nesmith Library permission to archive your story. Please respond to any questions that are relevant to your experience.

1. Please tell us your first name, to be included with your submission in our archive.
2. We may organize submissions by age group. Which applies to you? (If a child is responding with the help of a caregiver, use their age group.)
 - Preschool
 - Elementary
 - Middle School
 - High School
 - New Adult (ages 18-30)
 - Adult (30-60)
 - Senior (over 60)

3. Where are you quarantined?
4. What have you been doing during this pandemic?
5. Have you tried something "new" during this time? If so, what?
6. People say that something good comes from something bad. What are some of the "positives" that have come from this historic event?
7. Have you tried a new recipe? If so, share the recipe here.
8. Did you read while staying home? If so, what was the best thing you read during this time?
9. Have your family or friends shared interesting stories while you've been spending more time together? Did you learn anything new about people you live with?
10. Are there any other personal experiences related to the pandemic that you would like to share?
